I. EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

In March of 2002 the Michigan Court of Appeals adopted a long-range goal of disposing of all appeals filed with it within 18 months of filing, commencing with those cases filed on and after October 1, 2003. Since the Preliminary Report that signaled the inception of the Court's delay reduction plan, we have issued 7 Progress Reports. This Progress Report No. 8 sets out data covering the first quarter of 2004, the months of January, February, and March. The public can access the Preliminary Report and each of the eight progress reports on the Court's web site at <http://courtofappeals.mjud.net/>.

To meet the Court's long-range goal of disposing of all appeals within 18 months of filing, the Court adopted two objectives:

- First, the Court determined that it would need to reduce the time to process an opinion case from its 2001 level of 653 days to approximately 497 days. The Court designed a number of actions, which took effect over the summer and fall of 2002 through the commencement of FY 2004 on October 1, 2003, to meet this first objective.
- Second, the Court determined that it would then need to further reduce the time it takes to process an opinion case to approximately 300 days, commencing October 1, 2003. This, in essence, means that the Court must substantially reduce or eliminate the component in processing time that it calls the "Warehouse."

The Court is pleased to report that in the first quarter of 2004, it took 147 fewer days to move an opinion case through the Court than it did in its base year of 2001. Thus, the Court has accelerated the progress toward delay reduction that it achieved in 2002 and 2003. Indeed, the Court has reduced the time it takes to process an opinion case by over 22% in the past 27 months.

In the Court's presentation of its budget proposals for FY 2004 (the fiscal year commencing October 1, 2003), the Court concentrated on the Warehouse stage of its processing and made the point that with modest increases in the staff in its Research Division, it could eliminate or substantially reduce the time that a case gathers dust in the Warehouse. The Court is, therefore, extremely pleased that as part of an overall package of fee increase bills originated by the Supreme Court, supported by the Executive Branch, enacted by the Legislature, and signed by the Governor, it hopes to receive approximately $525,000 more in revenues in FY 2004 than it received in FY 2003. These funds have allowed the Court to increase its Research Division staff and complete the important work of drastically reducing or eliminating the Warehouse.

Indeed, that process is already well underway and the results to date have been extraordinarily positive. As noted above, for opinion cases decided in the first quarter of 2004, there has been another significant decrease in overall average processing times:

Comparative Overall Processing Times

2001	2002	2003	First Quarter 2004
653 Days	603 Days	554 Days	506 Days

Thus, the average time to process an opinion case, from filing to decision, through the Court has decreased by 147 days when comparing its base year of 2001 to the first quarter of 2004. As expected, a significant portion of these time savings—86 of the 147 days—has been achieved in the Warehouse stage:

Comparative Overall Processing Times/Warehouse

2001	2002	2003	First Quarter 2004
271 Days	261 Days	225 Days	185 Days

As the Court has emphasized in previous progress reports, the Court's core mission is to resolve the cases pending before it with due deliberation and due speed. The Court's delay reduction plan will, as it implements its final elements over the coming months, ensure due speed through the significant reduction of delay on appeal.

II. OVERVIEW

A. Statement of the Problem

In 2001, the Court disposed of approximately 7,600 cases. Of these, the Court disposed of 3,100 cases by opinion and the rest by order. On average, the Court disposed of these opinion cases within 653 days from the date of filing. The Judges of the Court unanimously determined that this time frame was not within acceptable limits and therefore adopted a comprehensive delay reduction plan on March 8, 2002. The Court has subsequently issued seven progress reports detailing its progress on this plan. This eighth progress report covers the first quarter of 2004. All of the reports are available on the Court's website at:

<http://courtofappeals.mijud.net/resources/specialproj.htm>.

B. Goals and Objectives

1. Long-Range Goal

The Court's delay reduction plan involves an overall long-range goal and two shorter-term objectives designed to meet that goal. The long-range goal is to dispose of 95% of all the Court's cases within 18 months of filing, commencing with those cases filed on or after October 1, 2003.

2. First Short-Term Objective

To achieve its long-range goal, the Court determined that it must first reduce the average time it takes to process an opinion case through the Court from its 2001 level of 653 days to approximately 497 days. To achieve this reduction, the Court has taken a three-pronged approach: First, the Court set very aggressive targets for disposing of cases once they reach the Judicial Chambers. Second, the Court, through a number of mechanisms, set equally aggressive targets for moving cases more quickly out of the Warehouse, primarily by moving these cases directly into the Judicial Chambers at a considerably accelerated pace. Third, the Court proposed a number of changes in the Court Rules to shorten the time in Intake. The Court designed these actions to take effect over the summer and fall of 2002 through the commencement of FY 2004 on October 1, 2003.

3. Second Short-Term Objective

Reducing the overall processing time for opinion cases from its 2001 level of 653 days to approximately 497 days will not, however, permit the Court to meet its long-range goal of disposing of 95% of all cases within 18 months of filing. To achieve this long-range goal, the Court must reduce its overall average processing time for opinion cases to approximately 300 days. To achieve that reduction, the Court must eliminate or substantially reduce the time the cases wait in Warehouse. That is the Court's second objective.

III. RESULTS THROUGH THE FIRST QUARTER OF 2004 AS COMPARED TO FIRST OBJECTIVE

A. Processing Times of Opinion Cases

1. Overall

As Chart 1 shows, in 2001 the Court took 653 days on average to dispose of an opinion case. In 2002, this time was 603 days and in 2003 it was 554 days. In the first quarter of 2004, this time was 506 days. Graph 1 shows these reductions on a comparative basis and relates them to the Court's first objective.

2. Judicial Chambers

As Chart 1 shows, in 2001 for those cases disposed of by opinion the time spent in the Judicial Chambers was 61 days. In 2002, this time was 40 days and in 2003 it was 30 days. In the first quarter of 2004, this time was 33 days. As the graph shows, the Court has exceeded its objective.

3. Research

As Chart 1 shows, in 2001 for those cases disposed of by opinion the time spent in the Research Division was 61 days. In 2002, this time was 62 days and in 2003 it was 64 days. In the first quarter of 2004, this time was 65 days. Graph 3 shows these times on a comparative basis.

4. Warehouse

As Chart 1 shows, in 2001 for those cases disposed of by opinion the time spent in the Warehouse was 271 days. In 2002, this time was 261 days and in 2003 it was 225 days. In the first quarter of 2004, this time was 185 days. Graph 4 shows these reductions on a comparative basis and relates them to the Court's first objective. As the graph shows, the Court has exceeded its objective.

5. Intake

As Chart 1 shows, in 2001 for those cases disposed of by opinion the time spent in Intake was 260 days. In 2002, this time was 240 days and in 2003 it was 235 days. In the first quarter of 2004, this time was 223 days. Graph 5 shows these reductions on a comparative basis and relates them to the Court's first objective. As the graph shows, the Court has not yet met its objective.

The Court has also focused special attention on dependency appeals. These appeals arise from trial court orders terminating parental rights (TPR) and deciding custody issues involving minor children in domestic relations cases. In 2001, it took 325 days, on average, to dispose of such cases by opinion. As Chart 5, above, shows, the Court reduced this time to 246 days in the first quarter of 2004. Of that time, 138 days was spent in the Intake stage. The combined time for all other stages was 108 days, including only 18 days in the Judicial Chambers. Graph 6 shows the situation with respect to dependency appeals beginning in 2001 through the first quarter of 2004.

Dependency Appeals

The Dependency Appeals Work Group published its final report in May 2003. See http://courtofappeals.mjud.net/pdf/Dependency_Appeals_Final_Report_May_2003.pdf. The Court of Appeals submitted proposed rule amendments to the Supreme Court that it adopted on February 3, 2004. These rule amendments focus on appeals from TPR orders and address delay that occurs after entry of such orders and through final disposition of an appeal to this Court. The goal is to reduce the disposition time to a total of seven months (210 days). The recommendations of the Work Group will result in an average time of 195 days from the date of the order terminating parental rights through disposition by the Court of Appeals. And only 167 days of that period (highlighted below) will occur at the Court of Appeals:

Days
Order of TPR	0	Day zero on timeline
Request for counsel	14	Proposed amendment of MCR 3.977(l)(1)(c)

Complete report	28	Current policy
Submit on call	14	Policy approved in August 2003
Issue opinion	14	Average time at COA from January through June 2003
Total days	196

In the fourth quarter of 2003, the Court hired additional contract attorneys with the delay reduction funding that the Legislature appropriated for FY 2004, so that dependency appeals can now receive research reports and be placed on call with virtually no delay. Further reductions in delay will occur if the Supreme Court adopts the proposed amendment of MCR 7.210(G), which shortens the time for forwarding the lower court record to this Court from 21 days to 14 days. This proposal remains under consideration by the Supreme Court as part of Proposed Amendment File No. 2002-34 that was taken under advisement in Administrative Order No. 2003-6 dated November 4, 2003. And, although it will not affect the disposition time in this Court because it precedes the filing of the appeal, the amendment of MCR 3.977(I) will reduce the time it takes to file the appeal by establishing an automatic claim of appeal that also constitutes the order of appointment of counsel and the order for transcript production. It is estimated that this will save 21 days between the time of the termination order and the filing of the appeal. The net effect of these changes will be a reduction of time on appeal in TPR cases from the present average of 246 days to the projected average of 167 days.

C. Case Age

As noted above, the Court decides a mix of cases, some by opinion and some by order. The Court's overall goal is to decide all of its cases within 18 months of filing (see table, below). While the Court is gratified at the increasing percentage of cases in its inventory that are 18 months old or less at disposition, the Court still must make considerable progress if it is to meet its long-term goal of deciding 95% of all its cases within 18 months of filing.

Percentage of Cases 18 Months Old Or Less At Disposition

	2001	2002	2003	2004
Opinion Cases	25.03	33.31	46.59	65.26
Order Cases	x ¹	97.36	97.70	98.58
All Cases	y ¹	66.92	74.43	83.15

IV. NEXT STEPS

A. Increasing the Staff in the Research Division

The Court recognized in March of 2002 that, given existing budget constraints, it was not realistic to expect that it could add new attorneys to its Research Division in either FY 2002 or FY 2003. Indeed, the Court actually experienced significant budget reductions during both of these fiscal years. Nevertheless, to meet its overall goal of disposing of 95% of all appeals within 18 months of filing, the Court must further reduce the time it takes to process an opinion case to approximately 300 days. In the presentation of its budget request for FY 2004, the Court emphasized that, in order to meet this goal, it must add attorneys to its Research Division and thereby drastically reduce or eliminate the Warehouse.

Fortunately, there was almost universal recognition of this urgent need. As part of an overall package of fee increase bills originated by the Supreme Court, supported by the Executive Branch, enacted by the Legislature, and signed by the Governor, the Court hopes to receive approximately $525,000 more in revenues in FY 2004 from entry and motion fees than it received in FY 2003. These funds have allowed the Court to increase its Research Division staff and this accounts for the dramatic decrease in the wait in the Warehouse in the fourth quarter of 2003 and the first quarter of 2004.

Graph 7
Staffing Levels In Research Division

B. Reducing the Time in Intake

As the Court builds up its staff in the Research Division to drastically reduce or eliminate the time a case spends in the Warehouse, it also must address the problem of the delay in Intake. As noted above, in 2001, an opinion case spent 260 days on average in Intake. In 2002, that time was 240 days on average and in 2003 it was 235 days on average. The Court initially proposed to reduce the time a case spends in Intake to 173 days on average for those cases filed on or after October 1, 2003. The Court proposed to meet that objective through adoption of the various changes to the court rules. These proposed changes remain under consideration by the Michigan Supreme Court while, at the same time, a Case Management Work Group with members from the Supreme Court, the Court of Appeals, and the Bar, developed a plan for the management of civil cases at the Court. The plan that the Case Management Work Group recently submitted to the Supreme Court would, it is estimated, cut approximately 70 days from the average time it takes to process an opinion case in its first year of operation.

V. CONCLUSIONS

On March 8, 2002, the Judges of the Court of Appeals adopted the ambitious goal of disposing of 95% of all appeals filed with the Court within 18 months of filing. The Court's delay reduction plan, with the exception of changes to the court rules that would reduce the time a case spends in Intake, commenced on an overall basis in July of 2002. In the first quarter of 2004:

- The Court reduced the overall time it takes to dispose of an opinion case from the 2001 level of 653 days to 506 days. The Court's first objective was to reduce the time it takes to dispose of an opinion case to 497 days commencing fully on October 1, 2003. Thus, the Court will need to shorten the time it takes to dispose of an opinion case by another nine days to meet its first objective.
- The Court reduced the time a case spends in the Judicial Chambers from the 2001 level of 61 days to 33 days. The Court therefore has achieved — indeed, it has exceeded — its first objective.
- The Court reduced the time a case waits in the Warehouse from the 2001 level of 271 days to 185 days. The Court's objective was to reduce the wait in the Warehouse to 217 days by October 1, 2003. The Court therefore has now achieved — indeed, it has exceeded — its first objective.
- The time a case spends in Intake has been reduced from the 2001 level of 260 days to 223 days. The Court's objective was to reduce the time in Intake to 173 days commencing with the cases filed on or after October 1, 2003. Thus, the Court will need to reduce the time a case spends in Intake by another 50 days to meet its objective.
- The Court has reduced the overall time it takes to process dependency appeals from the 2001 level of 325 days to 246 days. The recently adopted rule changes (and the ultimate adoption of the remaining proposal for changing MCR 7.210 as to the time for filing the record with the Court) will further reduce the time on appeal of TPR cases to a projected average of 167 days.

Chart 6 summarizes the further progress that will be needed to meet the Court's first objective of reducing the time it takes to dispose of an opinion case from the 2001 level of 653 days to 497 days commencing fully on October 1, 2003.

Chart 7 summarizes the additional progress that will be needed to meet the Court's second objective of reducing the time it takes to dispose of an opinion case from the 2001 level of 653 days to approximately 300 days by September of 2004.

Graph 8
Progress Toward Objectives

As mentioned in previous progress reports, the Court has established a solid base upon which it can build over the next year so that it can achieve its long-range goal of deciding 95% of all appeals within 18 months of filing. The Court's core mission is to resolve the cases pending before it with due deliberation and due speed. Existing Court policies and procedures are focused on ensuring due deliberation. The Court's delay reduction plan will ensure due speed through the significant reduction of delay on appeal. This is part of the Court's core mission and is, and shall remain, a first priority of the Court.
